

GROUNDBREAKING AVIS TURNAROUND FACILITY TO SERVICE THOUSANDS OF CARS

In a bid to gear up for the 2010 Soccer World Cup Abland has thrown its energy into creating a turnaround facility for the internationally known Avis group. Situated in close proximity to the Cape Town International Airport, a gateway for travellers worldwide, it will be ideally placed to deal with the massive influx of tourists to South African shores in less than a year's time.

The development includes an Avis Regional Office, a wash and valet bay structure, refuelling facility, under-roof parking, attractive entrance, security building, Zeda and New Car building, and a workshop complete with spray booth facilities. Abland has ensured that no block remains unchecked in the construction of this impressive landmark.

As of July 17th, 2009 all Avis rental vehicles will, at some point in their mechanical lives, venture into this massive facility to be repaired, maintained, washed, checked and stored in a bid to ensure that all rentals within the Cape region are up to the high standards that Avis has become known for.

With a capacity for parking approximately 2 000 cars and a state of the art workshop complete with under-roof parking, the developers have really pulled out all of the stops in order to be absolutely sure that the facility is top notch.

This turnaround facility is yet another exciting development to take place within South African borders in preparation for the highly anticipated and most widely broadcast sporting event in the world –The 2010 FIFA Soccer World Cup™.
